

Primate List – Michael Johnson

36 species as at the 3rd June 2023

Not having been to the Neotropics or Madagascar yet means that I am missing the ten primate families that are found there. I have seen five of the remaining six families, and hope to see the sixth later this year.

The highlights of my trip to Uganda this year were the pottos and obviously the gorillas and chimpanzees. The trip added 20 new species to my list, given I had already seen the vervet monkey. The very first mammal I went on a trip to deliberately seek out was a primate, the Sumatran orangutan, back in 1980.

I do not count Humans but mention them on my list for completeness.
